

Using Information Ethically with Citations

Part 1:

For your current research paper, answer the following questions to get you started on the citation process:

1. Review the assignment instructions and determine which citation style your instructor is requiring.
2. Is there a required number of sources and source types?
3. Is there a required number of in-text citations required? (Either direct quotes or paraphrase citations.) This isn't always specified in research papers, but it's nice to know if there is a requirement or suggested number.

Part 2:

Name 2-3 places you can get help with citations. (Virtually or in person)

Go back to the "Where to Get Help?" Section and bookmark those links so you can find them later.